Cyrus Dadgostar

1/4/2024

The Perfect Day

Normally, my days are calming and relaxing but boring. I usually wake up at 5:30 AM, which I don't particularly love doing. Then, I eat some fruit for breakfast and I go to my room to play drums. My parents bought me muffled drums to make sure I'm not waking up any neighbors. After practice, I study my Farsi, do some math, and play the piano. Farsi is the language of Iran, which is where my dad is from. Even though it's difficult, I really want to learn the language fluently so I can communicate with my family members who speak Farsi. After my morning extracurriculars, I go to school, have fun while learning, and I come back home. At home, I usually finish my piano practice, play some games on my iPad, and talk with my dad about how exciting our days were. By then, the time is around 5:00 or 6:00 PM, so I eat dinner (prepared by my mom) with my entire family, and I go to bed. While this may be my normal day, it is not my dream day where I do everything I want to do.

I would like to change certain parts of my day to make it the ideal day. For example, I would like to sleep in until 7:00 AM instead of 5:30 AM to get more rest. For breakfast, I would eat pancakes, which I love to eat but tend to take time to prepare. Then, I would like to go to the dog park with my parents, my sister, and my dog, Apollo. Apollo would likely chase down the ball I throw but forget to bring it back to me and move on to running around the park. While I do enjoy my typical day-to-day schedule, I often feel like I wish I could be accompanied by my family instead of only seeing them in the afternoon. The dog park is a place where I can share with them while enjoying an outside environment I don't typically spend time in. After we come back, I would like to meet up with my friends on Roblox to play games like Blox Fruits and Blade Ball. Because I usually only see my friends at school, I would be really happy to share this time, even if it was online. I would also like to go to Universal Studios with my friends and family, as I have not gone to Universal Studios in years. We could go to the Super Nintendo World that recently opened and buy cool Super Mario Bros. hats to walk around in. We would go on all the rides and eat hot dogs and pizza there. Then, we could go to my grandparents' house. My cousins would also be there, so I could play hide-and-seek with them and talk with them. I could spend a few hours there and eat Persian food. I would then watch an animated movie with my family at home while eating cookies and popcorn and drinking hot cocoa. Although these are some of my favorite foods, I haven't had them in a while. By then, the time would likely be close to 7:00 PM, so I would go to sleep as content as could be.

Essentially, my ideal day is one in which I could spend more time with my friends and family. Although they are very precious to me, I do not see them very often, so I would choose to share these activities I haven't done in a while with them.